HAD RHEUMATISM FORTY YEARS

Unable to Bend Knees—Claims Var-ne-sis Removed Every Sign of Disease

"I have suffered from rheumatism since I was twenty-three years of age. I am now 73. Of course I thought there was no help for me, as each year I grew worse, until finally it got so bad that I had to be assisted in getting from a chair. I was unable to bend my knees and could not open or close my hands, as the fingers were swollen from a chalky deposit." So said Mrs. S. E. Smith of 10 Verona St., Lynn, Mass.

At times I was confined to my bed, unable to lift my head from the pillow or turn over without assistance. It seemed as though every part of my body was involved, and the pain through my hips was almost unbearable. A good friend had been helped through Var-ne-sis that I decided to try it, although I had very little faith. It would benefit me very much. I started the medicine and started to take it faithfully, and after several months I could see a decided change in my condition; by continuing the treatment every sign and symptom left me, even the hard swelling on the finger joints disappeared. It seems almost incredible that a woman who has had the disease so long could recover. I consider it almost miraculous, but will be glad to talk to anyone about my condition or answer any letters pertaining to my case."

Var-ne-sis is a vegetable remedy that has been remarkably successful in chronic cases of rheumatism, particularly in those cases that have been treated with the ordinary remedies month after month without results. No rheumatic sufferer can afford to ignore Var-ne-sis. On exhibition at the Boston office, 140 Boylston St., are crutches, canes, photographs, wheel chairs, letters, etc., obtained from sufferers that have recovered through Var-ne-sis after being told that there was no help for them. $1000 is offered if the testimonials are not genuine or that they have been purchased. Send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass., for the newspaper devoted to rheumatism; it should be in the hands of every sufferer. Get Var-ne-sis now—today, at Riker-Hagman and other reliable druggists. Tell your druggist to get Var-ne-sis for you from his wholesaler or send to W. A. Varney, Lynn, Mass.—Adv.

Loose, Careless Appearance of Last Year's Suits Gone—Trimness One of the Features of This Season's Styles, Thanks to the War.

Pretty Street Frocks, Adapted to Silk or Wool, Designed for To-Day—Two Ways to Develop It.

Copyright, 1910, by The Evening World, Inc.

"What are you buying in the way of new spring clothes?" That is the question most often asked just now. Some are struggling to supply the need of a suit, some a frock, and some who have not yet been tempted into the millinery shops which were showing alluring creations before winter had left us, are looking for an answer.

The suit should be chosen with great care, more so than the frock, for always on the street we are held up for criticism. Indeed, many a reputation for being well dressed has been earned by the smart street suit whose blouse and accompanying hat has been selected with regard to the contemporary effect.

A change has come over the walking suit, a change in keeping with that momentous upheaval in established affairs caused by the situation in Europe. We are no longer to be vague, undefined, not to say "slippy," in our outdoor garments, an effect caused by the loose kimono sleeve and corresponding looseness of fit. The debutante slouch has departed, and we are brisk, erect, practical in our bearing, all of which is reflected in the cut of the new spring suits and frocks.

Military touches are seen on almost everything. Boutache braid has been used by the thousand-yard pace, one would think, by the elaborate braiding on some costumes. Also silver and aluminum thread embroidery is used for more dainty effects with particular charm on soft taffeta frocks or suits. Dark blue, dark green, the many neutral shades of tan, sand, and brown, and battle-ship grays are the most popular colors. Soldier blue is seen, but not extensively.

DESCRIPTION OF FROCK. I am showing to-day a design for a pretty street frock adaptable to silk or wool material, or, as pictured at the right, a combination of the two. A plain waist portion which in its very cut suggests its simple trend, is nevertheless given a guardian band of velvet up the front, with straps of braid each side which emphasize its dignity. Entirely of blue, the brass buttons afford a pleasing opportunity for a decorative touch, while adding to the military effect. Thin serge or gabardine for the main waist, allows the cooler charm of silk to favor the sleeves and collar. Cuffs of velvet finish the sleeves, while a refreshing flare of white organdy completes the collar.

Hip yokes are very modish this spring, and the skirt of the frock in effect are the pockets there, for are those button and braid trimmed pieces anything but pocket flaps? Cut in one with the yoke, they are given individually by the band of velvet which passes under them on its way around the yoke. From under this a straight ruffle of the soft taffeta drapes and a band of the taffeta at the ankles, complete a skirt of unusual distinction.

A pretty color green taffeta might develop the frock at the left, which could be trimmed with black, green or brown braid, the last mentioned would be charming if bronze shoes and brown hat were worn with the frock. Tan silk and brown braid would also be pretty, while a one color scheme is quite as possible.

BROWNVILLE, Tex., March 31.—Three batteries of the United States Third Field Artillery arrived here early today to be ready, if necessary, to protect Brownsville when Matamoros is under attack. Major Gen. Frederick Funston, sent here by the War Department to see that the American border is not violated, expressed himself as pleased at the prompt movement of the artillery. Two Singers And One Pianist In Day's Music

By Sylvester Rawling.

UDOLPH GANZ, the Swiss pianist, gave a recital at the Princeton Theatre yesterday afternoon in which he exploited compositions by Liszt, Alkan, Ravel and Debussy. One of Alkan's works was "The Railroad." Unmistakably it was a passenger train that was depicted on its way, because there was no musical warning of "Low Bridge" to the brakemen, or suggestion of the presence of "hoboes" on the trucks. A few piercing notes probably stood for the locomotive's whistle on approaching a station. For the rest, there was nothing but rumbling and rocking. One of the Debussy pieces was "The Girl with Flaxen Hair." Mr. Ganz, evidently, was making fun for himself and his audience, as a relief from his more serious programmes. A crowded house seemed to enjoy it.

But Mr. Ganz also appeared as composer. In the latter capacity, with himself as accompanist at the piano, he had the assistance of Elsa Alves, soprano, who sang five of his songs in German and seven of his songs in English, thereby permitting both of them to reach very near to strict neutrality. Miss Alves has youth and beauty and a voice that has charm and flexibility. Her father and mother were well known here as teachers. Since the death of the former, mother and daughter have been in Germany. Miss Alves has appeared in concert with Mr. Ganz in Berlin.

Mary Carson, soprano, who was a member of the Century Opera Company, gave a recital at Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon. Nervousness at the beginning prevented her from doing herself justice, but after that had worn off her voice, while it showed quality, remained a small voice, and her singing was in miniature and lacked variety. Her programme, which began with Stradella's "Pia, Signora," included in the first part the "Vol che Sapete" from Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and the "Bel
